

Discovery[®]

Personal Profile

Steven Chen

25 March 2026

Foundation Chapter
Management Chapter
Personal Achievement Chapter

Personal Details

Steven Chen
STEVEN.CHEN@LILLY.COM

Date Completed: 25 March 2026

Date Printed: 26 March 2026

Contents

Introduction	4
Overview	5
Personal Style	5
Interacting with Others	6
Decision Making	6
Key Strengths & Weaknesses	7
Strengths	7
Possible Weaknesses	8
Value to the Team	9
Effective Communications	10
Barriers to Effective Communication	11
Possible Blind Spots	12
Opposite Type	13
Suggestions for Development	15
Management	16
Creating the Ideal Environment	16
Managing Steven Chen	17
Motivating Steven Chen	18
Management Style	19
Personal Achievement Chapter	20
Living on Purpose	21
Time and Life Management	22
Personal Creativity	23
Lifelong Learning	24
Learning Styles	25
The Insights Discovery® 72 Type Wheel	26
The Insights Discovery® Colour Dynamics	27

Introduction

This Insights Discovery profile is based on Steven Chen's responses to the Insights Preference Evaluator which was completed on 25 March 2026.

The origins of personality theory can be traced back to the fifth century BC, when Hippocrates identified four distinct energies exhibited by different people. The Insights System is built around the model of personality first identified by the Swiss psychologist Carl Gustav Jung. This model was published in his 1921 work "Psychological Types" and developed in subsequent writings. Jung's work on personality and preferences has since been adopted as the seminal work in understanding personality and has been the subject of study for thousands of researchers to the present day.

Using Jung's typology, this Insights Discovery profile offers a framework for self-understanding and development. Research suggests that a good understanding of self, both strengths and weaknesses, enables individuals to develop effective strategies for interaction and can help them to better respond to the demands of their environment.

Generated from several hundred thousand permutations of statements, this profile is unique. It reports statements which your Evaluator responses indicate may apply to you. Modify or delete any statement which does not apply, but only after checking with colleagues or friends to identify whether the statement may be a "blind spot" for you.

Use this profile pro-actively. That is, identify the key areas in which you can develop and take action. Share the important aspects with friends and colleagues. Ask for feedback from them on areas which seem particularly relevant for you and develop an action plan for growth personally and interpersonally.

Overview

These statements provide a broad understanding of Steven Chen's work style. Use this section to gain a better understanding of his approaches to his activities, relationships and decisions.

Personal Style

Steven Chen works long and hard in pursuit of his goals and is interested in moving forward systematically. He is often more interested in “real things” than intangibles, such as abstract ideas and theories. He has a drive for tangible accomplishment and correctness with a leaning towards perfection. He can be a great “designer” of systems, which he prefers to leave to others to build. He likes to make sure that he knows what is going on and tries to make sure that everyone is pulling their weight.

An original thinker, Steven Chen is highly observant and approaches his role with single-minded focus. He is conceptual, tenacious and realistic. Under moderate tension, he is still able to reflect and become more efficient and effective. His knack for identifying and attending to key issues positions him well in dealing with an emergency. He values the development of his intellectual awareness and the opportunity to learn, improve and grow. He is unlikely to be comfortable expressing his inner feelings to strangers. He is adept at homing in on the essence of complicated, confusing situations.

Steven Chen is the conceptual problem solver, intensely intellectual and logical, exhibiting flashes of creative brilliance. His perception of the world is a conceptual and abstract one, but one with endless possibilities. Steven Chen is hardworking, righteous, fiercely independent and convinced that moral good must win above all else. He is convinced that a successful life needs to be tough and that satisfaction must be earned and re-earned. Because he lives by principles and rules, Steven Chen is very consistent and dependable. Although uninterested in purely scholastic pursuits, knowledge is important for its immediate usefulness to him.

Steven Chen has a gift for seeing the important facts of a situation. His desire for privacy sometimes generates a vague feeling in others that there is an unlived life that may be passing him by. Both for himself and others, fun, relaxation and free time are scheduled and prioritised events. He seeks purpose and meaning from most working situations. Until untried ideas and theories have been tested and personally experienced, he will tend not to trust them.

Steven Chen's ability to focus on task suggests that he is a good problem solver. He can be a veritable storehouse of information on the things he knows well and understands. Independent, logical and determined, he may work well with computers if this involves research or analysis. He may need assistance in tapping into his creativity and to bring projects to completion. People expect that any job which Steven Chen is involved in will be done well. They will rarely be disappointed.

Interacting with Others

Possessing determination and perseverance, Steven Chen has a high regard for his own competence and values others with similar high standards. He can be stubborn and argumentative. He is likely to prefer the dialogue which is going on in his head with his internal critic to participation in “meaningless” social chit-chat with others. He needs to learn to appreciate the “illogical” feelings of others and to accept that they are also valid. He may also be rather uncomfortable in “touchy-feely” situations.

Despite being somewhat quiet, perhaps even self-effacing, Steven Chen will converse at length on subjects that he knows well enough to enable him to display his wealth of information. He will make a lifelong friend if the conditions of the friendship allow him complete independence and the freedom to withdraw as and when necessary. He may prefer not, or may find it difficult, to express personal feelings to others. He is not particularly discouraged by indifference or criticism. Others may find it difficult to influence him using an argument without a clear rationale.

In applying unrealistically high standards to himself, he may expect too much from himself and others. He is not a “party animal” and often prefers his own company. He tends to withdraw when he is put under pressure. Although he has a good understanding of facts, figures and ideas he may sometimes struggle to present them to others and have them understood and accepted. He should try to establish whether his ideas are relevant and not ignore the feedback he might receive.

Decision Making

Steven Chen is self-reliant and is not frightened to take “the path of maximum resistance” in his efforts to produce the best results. He values truth above all else and is primarily convinced by logical reasoning. He sees himself as realistic, practical and matter-of-fact, although others may not always see the practicality of some of his decisions. He is a good problem solver because he can absorb necessary factual information and find logical and sensible solutions quickly. Steven Chen thinks in extremely complex ways and seeks to organise concepts and ideas rather than people.

Steven Chen is able to readily grasp any underlying principles and make decisions based on logic, rather than on how people feel. Equally comfortable thinking things through or talking them out, Steven Chen balances these two processes well. Steven Chen can usually get to the heart of any situation and implement an effective solution. Steven Chen's quizzical and probing nature may create solutions which open up fresh processes. Steven Chen's many accomplishments are achieved mainly through determination and perseverance in reaching or exceeding his high standards.

People count on Steven Chen for insightful analyses and forthright judgements. He is impressed by reason and logic and prefers to focus his thinking on the underlying principles. He can be creative and imaginative. Using past experiences to help him solve current problems and get things done is one of his strong points. He may lack patience with others who are less focused on the job in hand.

Personal Notes

Key Strengths & Weaknesses

Strengths

This section identifies the key strengths which Steven Chen brings to the organisation. Steven Chen has abilities, skills and attributes in other areas, but the statements below are likely to be some of the fundamental gifts he has to offer.

Steven Chen's key strengths:

- Looks for better ways.
 - Knows the importance of detail within the process.
 - Rapid reasoning.
 - Dependable.
 - Pays great attention to detail.
 - Applies past experience to new situations.
 - Good at suggesting improved ways of achieving goals.
 - Concentrates for as long as necessary.
 - An orderly approach to the task.
 - Curious about processes.
-

Personal Notes

Key Strengths & Weaknesses

Possible Weaknesses

Jung said “wisdom accepts that all things have two sides”. It has also been said that a weakness is simply an overused strength. Steven Chen's responses to the Evaluator have suggested these areas as possible weaknesses.

Steven Chen's possible weaknesses:

- Can get bogged down with tradition and the status quo.
 - May go off in his own direction if challenged.
 - At times dismissive of other people's ideas and feelings.
 - Occasionally becomes too focused, risking “tunnel vision”.
 - May suppress creativity.
 - May be seen as too critical and sceptical.
 - Tends to avoid social interaction.
 - Becomes defensive or dogmatic if challenged.
 - More interested in intellectual rather than practical challenges.
 - His perfectionism can be seen to be “nit picking” when not valued.
-

Personal Notes

Value to the Team

Each person brings a unique set of gifts, attributes and expectations to the environment in which they operate. Add to this list any other experiences, skills or other attributes which Steven Chen brings, and make the most important items on the list available to other team members.

As a team member, Steven Chen:

- Prevents complacency within the team.
 - Helps the team to schedule its activities to meet goals.
 - Provides a rich variety of alternative solutions.
 - Is seen as a natural organiser.
 - Seeks and provides attention to detail.
 - Helps to create and maintain an orderly work environment.
 - Is at home in reflection or interacting.
 - Ensures objective decision making.
 - May provide team numeracy, literacy or technical structure.
 - May lose the battle, but rarely concedes defeat.
-

Personal Notes

Communication

Effective Communications

Communication can only be effective if it is received and understood by the recipient. For each person certain communication strategies are more effective than others. This section identifies some of the key strategies which will lead to effective communication with Steven Chen. Identify the most important statements and make them available to colleagues.

Strategies for communicating with Steven Chen:

- Respect his knowledge of the job.
 - Ensure that he understands the rules.
 - Ask for his advice.
 - Be punctual.
 - Use charts and graphs or other precise visual aids to make your points.
 - Seek his opinions and ideas before imposing yours.
 - Acknowledge his flashes of creative brilliance.
 - Deal in probabilities not possibilities.
 - Be logical in presenting information.
 - Listen to his opinions.
 - Present only solid and reliable facts.
 - Be consistent.
-

Personal Notes

Communication

Barriers to Effective Communication

Certain strategies will be less effective when communicating with Steven Chen. Some of the things to be avoided are listed below. This information can be used to develop powerful, effective and mutually acceptable communication strategies.

When communicating with Steven Chen, DO NOT:

- Be indecisive, unclear or “woolly”.
 - Show less than full commitment to his project.
 - Criticise his ideas or take issues with them.
 - Interrupt him while he is in control.
 - Invade his privacy.
 - Show disagreement with or disrespect for his principles.
 - Try to pin the blame on him.
 - Approach him with foregone conclusions.
 - Digress or wander off at a tangent.
 - Expect him to immediately strike up close relationships or friendships.
 - Be too loud and hearty.
 - Keep him in the dark or he will do likewise.
-

Personal Notes

Possible Blind Spots

Our perceptions of self may be different to the perceptions others have of us. We project who we are onto the outside world through our “persona” and are not always aware of the effect our less conscious behaviours have on others. These less conscious behaviours are termed “Blind Spots”. Highlight the important statements in this section of which you are unaware and test them for validity by asking for feedback from friends or colleagues.

Steven Chen's possible Blind Spots:

Steven Chen strives after justice and wants to rectify injustice whenever and wherever he finds it - but his values must prevail. As he doesn't readily look for different ways of doing things, he can appear inflexible or indifferent to others' views. He may appear overly assertive and too strong willed at times.

He could learn to protect himself against closed-mindedness by waiting a few seconds more before speaking, giving others the chance to offer input. His desire for correctness tends to perfection. He expects to win and is very assertive in attaining outcomes despite how narrow his view may sometimes appear. Prone to negative reaction if he perceives someone he respects questioning his competence, he may react explosively to seemingly insignificant input. He needs to look beyond the current moment and his pressing interest in the practical world and consider ways of completing tasks with less pressure.

He dislikes disorganisation, tardiness, sloppiness or inappropriate behaviour in both self and others and can sometimes generate an intensity inappropriate to the situation. Sometimes rather closed minded, he may believe that someone else's ideas will not work as well as his own. The high value he places on critical analysis, competence and forthright communication fosters a perception that he doesn't particularly care about peoples feelings. As he doesn't naturally ask “what if”, he often misses possible meanings, implications and connections. He may not easily understand criticism of his work, tending to associate criticism with displeasure.

Personal Notes

Opposite Type

The description in this section is based on Steven Chen's opposite type on the Insights Wheel. Often, we have most difficulty understanding and interacting with those whose preferences are different to our own. Recognising these characteristics can help in developing strategies for personal growth and enhanced interpersonal effectiveness.

Recognising your Opposite Type:

Steven Chen's opposite Insights type is the Helper, Jung's "Feeling" type.

Helpers are warm, understanding and sociable individuals who strive for positive relationships with people both at work and home. They are usually sensitive to others and work well in a team situation. However, Steven Chen may observe that the Helper takes criticism personally and finds it difficult to become authoritative or objective with others when necessary. Helpers sometimes have difficulty in making key decisions without consultation.

Steven Chen will notice that people are far more important to the Helper than the accomplishment of tasks. The Helper's nature tends to be personable, which may mean that Steven Chen sees them as fickle or soft. Helpers can be stressed in fast moving, impersonal situations which change without warning. Helpers display their emotions and usually have limitless patience for those who are dependent on them. They will usually ignore judgements that rely heavily on logical analysis - often the judgement preferred by Steven Chen.

Helpers will tend to avoid telling someone an unpleasant truth or tell it in an affirmative way. Helpers are accommodating and occasionally self-effacing and are always content to support others without expecting much in return. Steven Chen may see the Helper idealising others and adopting a romantic version of people and their potential.

Personal Notes

Opposite Type

Communication with Steven Chen's Opposite Type

Written specifically for Steven Chen, this section suggests some strategies he could use for effective interaction with someone who is his opposite type on the Insights Wheel.

Steven Chen: How you can meet the needs of your Opposite Type:

- Allow him time to talk it over with those who may be affected.
- Mirror his normally calm and even-tempered nature.
- Agree exactly what needs to be done.
- Avoid unnecessary distractions - keep to the point.
- Expect him to come back later for clarification.
- Give praise and thanks for a job well done.

Steven Chen: When dealing with your opposite type DO NOT:

- Forget to balance interaction with time for reflection.
- Omit to discuss how others may be affected by a decision.
- Show disregard for his feelings by your words or actions.
- Become too impersonal.
- Patronise or be paternalistic.
- Put him “on the spot” in front of others.

Personal Notes

Suggestions for Development

Insights Discovery does not offer direct measures of skill, intelligence, education or training. However, listed below are some suggestions for Steven Chen's development. Identify the most important areas which have not yet been addressed. These can then be incorporated into a personal development plan.

Steven Chen may benefit from:

- Knowing it is OK to relax and laugh at himself.
 - Gently asking some quieter people to express their point of view.
 - Refusing to think about or re-visit a previous decision.
 - Meeting with and talking to more assertive and energetic people.
 - Sharing responsibilities or processes.
 - Expressing himself more clearly and forcibly at times.
 - Being more open about how he is feeling.
 - Setting deadlines - then sticking to them.
 - Engaging excitedly in general discussion.
 - Accepting that perfection can be a rather obstructive standard to constantly aspire to.
-

Personal Notes

Management

Creating the Ideal Environment

People are generally most effective when provided with an environment which suits their preferences and style. It can be uncomfortable to work in an environment which does not. This section should be used to ensure a close match between Steven Chen's ideal environment and his current one and to identify any possible frustrations.

Steven Chen's Ideal Environment is one in which:

- Discipline, quality and consistency are equally valued.
 - Complex data can be assimilated into concise reports.
 - He has plenty of personal space.
 - There are others like him around.
 - Structure and systematic processes are prevalent.
 - There is respect for his orderly and tidy processes.
 - Opportunities for personal and professional development are plentiful.
 - His desire for perfection is valued by others.
 - There are few procedures or protocols.
 - Principles and standards are respected.
-

Personal Notes

Management

Managing Steven Chen

This section identifies some of the most important strategies in managing Steven Chen. Some of these needs can be met by Steven Chen himself and some may be met by his colleagues or management. Go through this list to identify the most important current needs, and use it to build a personal management plan.

Steven Chen needs:

- Help with curbing his sometimes hurtful criticism of others.
- Not to be expected to deal with emotionally charged people.
- Encouragement to deal with some issues immediately.
- Projects with an element of “detective” work.
- Respect for his desire to observe activities from a distance, and his preference not to become too directly involved in “team” activities.
- Personal and professional development to be supported and encouraged.
- The feeling that there is a sound and clear management structure.
- Respect for his need for reflection and solitude.
- To be gently drawn into the team's social mainstream.
- Colleagues who value his quiet, reflective approach.

Personal Notes

Management

Motivating Steven Chen

It has often been said that it is not possible to motivate anyone - only to provide the environment in which they will motivate themselves. Here are some suggestions which can help to provide motivation for Steven Chen. With his agreement, build the most important ones into his Performance Management System and Key Result Areas for maximum motivation.

Steven Chen is motivated by:

- Having access to data and verifiable evidence.
 - Gathering and analysing technical information.
 - Being reassured that he will be allowed to keep technically up to date.
 - Respect for the correctness of his work.
 - “Reality” rather than abstract theories.
 - Rewards for his accuracy and attention to detail.
 - Being able to take control of situations.
 - Successful completion of major projects.
 - Communication in writing to enable him to assimilate information.
 - Confirmation that he is making a unique contribution.
-

Personal Notes

Management Style

There are many different approaches to management, most of which have different situational applications. This section identifies Steven Chen's natural management approach and offers clues to his management style, highlighting both gifts and possible hindrances that can be further explored.

In managing others, Steven Chen may tend to:

- Be perceived as a reflective thinker.
 - Be uncomfortable in emotionally charged discussion.
 - Search for accuracy or perfection, at times appearing overly critical.
 - Combine team skills to generate maximum effect.
 - Have a unique perspective regarding why things are the way they are.
 - Be unimpressed with slick or brash arguments and presentations.
 - Appreciate time to share the wealth of information or knowledge in which he specialises.
 - Over regulate processes.
 - Relish the opportunity to address complex problems or challenges.
 - Come up with ideas which save everybody time and effort.
-

Personal Notes

Personal Achievement Chapter

At its best, life is a rewarding journey of personal exploration and growth.

This chapter is designed to focus on several highly important aspects of personal development. Using the guidance suggested in these pages can lead to exciting changes and can have a profound impact on success.

The sections will help Steven Chen define his life's purpose, set his goals and organize his time and life to achieve them. It offers suggestions on how he can tap into his natural creativity, and unleash further creative potential from deeper aspects of his personality, to overcome any obstacle.

Finally, it gives powerful suggestions for Steven Chen to understand and enhance his preferred learning styles.

When applied, the ideas contained in this profile can provide insights and support to life's journey of development.

Living on Purpose

Having a sense of purpose and worthy goals are important to building a strong foundation for a successful life. Here are some of the things Steven Chen should be aware of in setting goals and defining his purpose.

Living on Purpose

Steven Chen is recognised for his analytical capabilities. His intellectual influence may increase as he extends his social base and interests. He may have a tendency to overlook other people's feelings and needs, especially if they differ from his own. As he often pushes others as hard as he pushes himself, he should perhaps take care that this is not de-motivating for some. When he is quiet, it may be interpreted by others as being rather cold and aloof.

Steven Chen usually sets a clear action plan in place when considering the best way to achieve his goals. Others recognise in him an ability to set the direction. As a result he usually plays an influential role in the team or process. He is well organised and monitors progress towards goals. He should also seek feedback from others more regularly and overcome his tendency to reject opposing inputs. He may be rather dubious about the whole principle of goal-setting. Being inclined to concentrate on testing outcomes, he may overlook the more human issues in the process. As a walking repository for facts and figures, he can be relied upon to produce evidence to support his actions. When considering goal-related issues, he could build in a greater degree of objectivity by soliciting the views of others whom he knows will not share his opinions.

Steven Chen's innate sense of accuracy enhances the quality of completion of projects. When in implementing mode, he will not always take time to sufficiently consider the opinions of others, and tends to disregard a more cautionary view. He is quite independent in both thought and action. Others will benefit from sharing his reasoning more openly. Although he prefers his own time scales, he can focus on team deadlines when necessary. He is a hard task-master when driving himself to new heights. His driving manner helps in the setting, and achieving of, high performance standards for both himself and his colleagues.

Personal Notes

Time and Life Management

Benjamin Franklin said "Dost thou love life? Then do not squander time, for that is the stuff life is made of". This section contains some strategies that Steven Chen can use to become more effective in the area of time and life management. Choose the most significant ones and apply them every day for high levels of effectiveness.

In managing his time, Steven Chen,

Suggested Action For Development

Needs ample time to assimilate information before proceeding.

→ Negotiate time for thorough reflection.

Likes to maintain a fast pace.

→ Take more account of the needs of others who may be involved.

Enjoys the responsibility of ensuring completion.

→ Share some responsibility to ease some of the pressure.

Gathers significant amounts of information before tackling the task.

→ It is not necessary to know how the watch works - just to know how to tell the time.

Maintains established rules and procedures.

→ Explore alternative methods to reduce time scales.

May seem too analytical or detached to some.

→ Work at being more action-oriented.

Personal Notes

Personal Creativity

Creativity has been defined as seeing the same thing as someone else but thinking something different. Different people have different creative strengths. This section identifies some of Steven Chen's creative characteristics and how he can build on them.

In his creativity, Steven Chen,	Suggested Action For Development
Knows that safety and reliability are paramount.	→ Articulate to the team of the importance of these factors.
Conceives ideas with great clarity about the final outcome.	→ Involve others at an earlier stage.
Has a bias for action and results.	→ Enjoy the creative journey, and slow down!
Often controls the creative process.	→ Delegate tasks to others.
Has well-developed views of how the job should be done.	→ Recognise that one method may not suit everyone.
Sees synergy as something to be done by himself!	→ Synergy is a game for two or more players.

Personal Notes

Lifelong Learning

Continual learning is a key part of personal development and growth. This section identifies several ideas Steven Chen can use to learn more effectively. Use these statements to map out a learning strategy and to create the environment for optimum personal growth.

Steven Chen's preferred learning style is supported when he:

- Has at his disposal facts and statistics to substantiate his decisions.
- Sees the practical aspects and how outcomes can apply to real life.
- Is in control at all stages of the learning process.
- There is an explicit answer to the question "what's the point?" for any activity or exercise.
- Has opportunities to confront and challenge the task at hand.
- Is provided with immediate problems to solve.

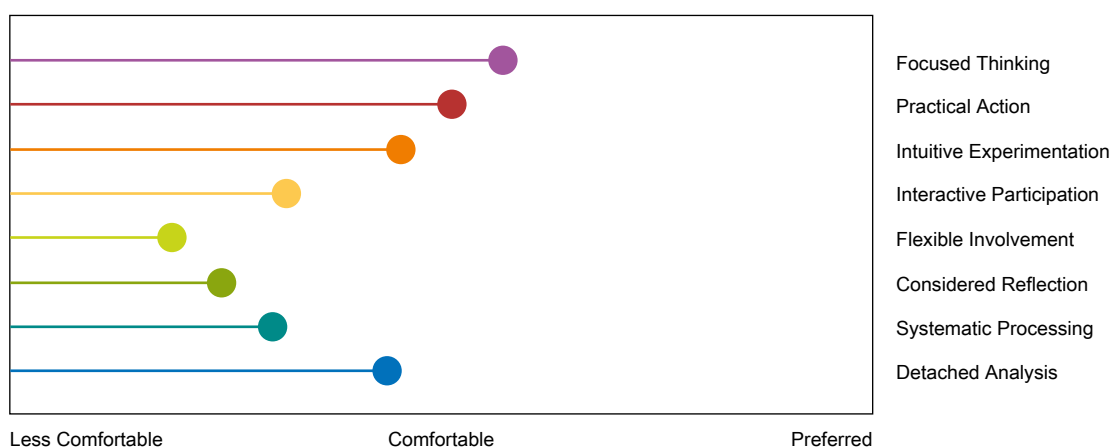

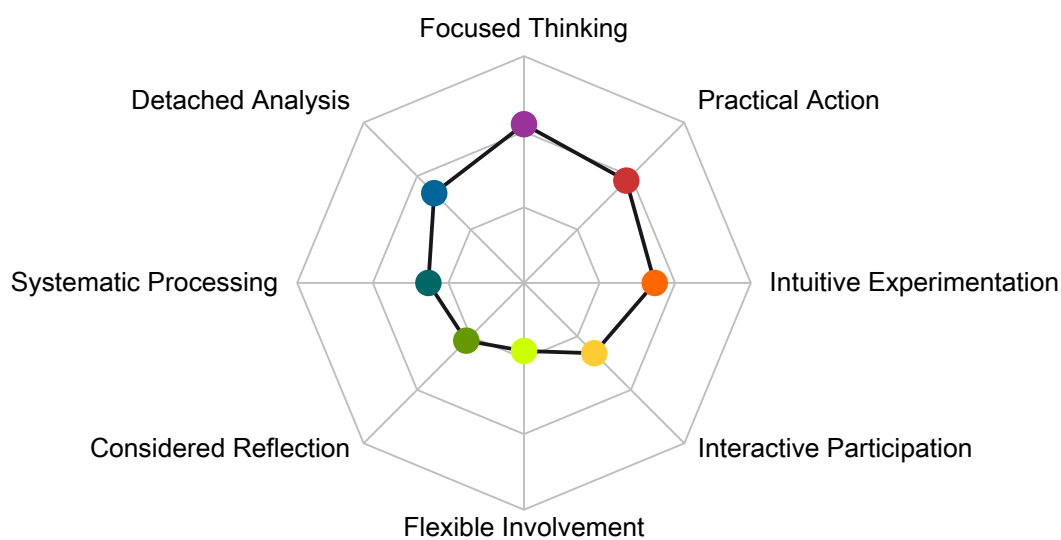

Steven Chen can stretch in learning by:

- Being open to feedback from others.
 - Speaking out more regularly in group sessions.
 - Putting less pressure on himself in order to achieve perfection.
 - Participating in group activities - social as well as work.
 - Coming to conclusions on less information than perhaps is comfortable.
 - Mentally framing questions in a positive manner before articulating them.
-

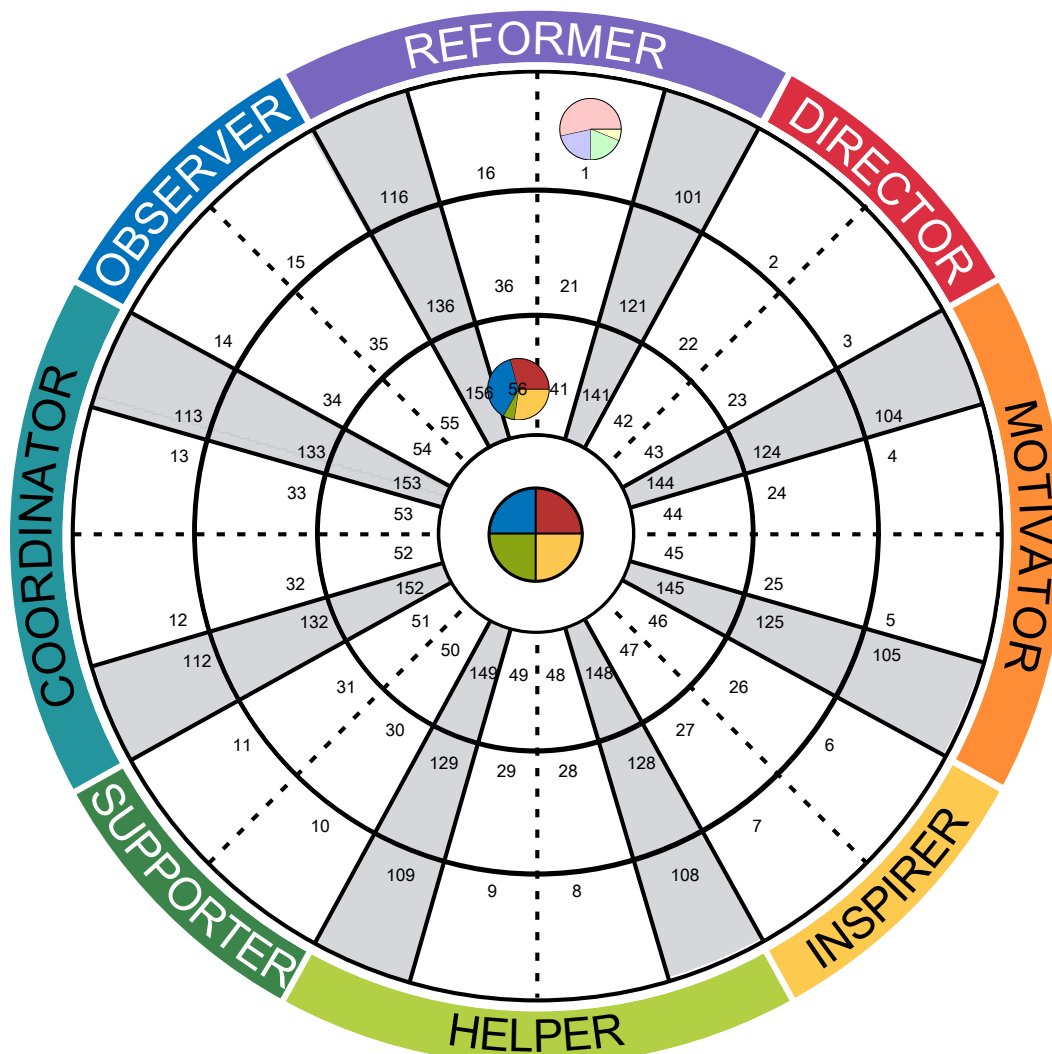

Personal Notes

Learning Styles

25 March 2026

The Insights Discovery® 72 Type Wheel

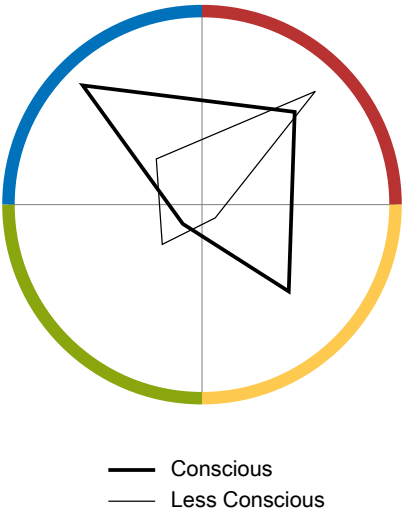

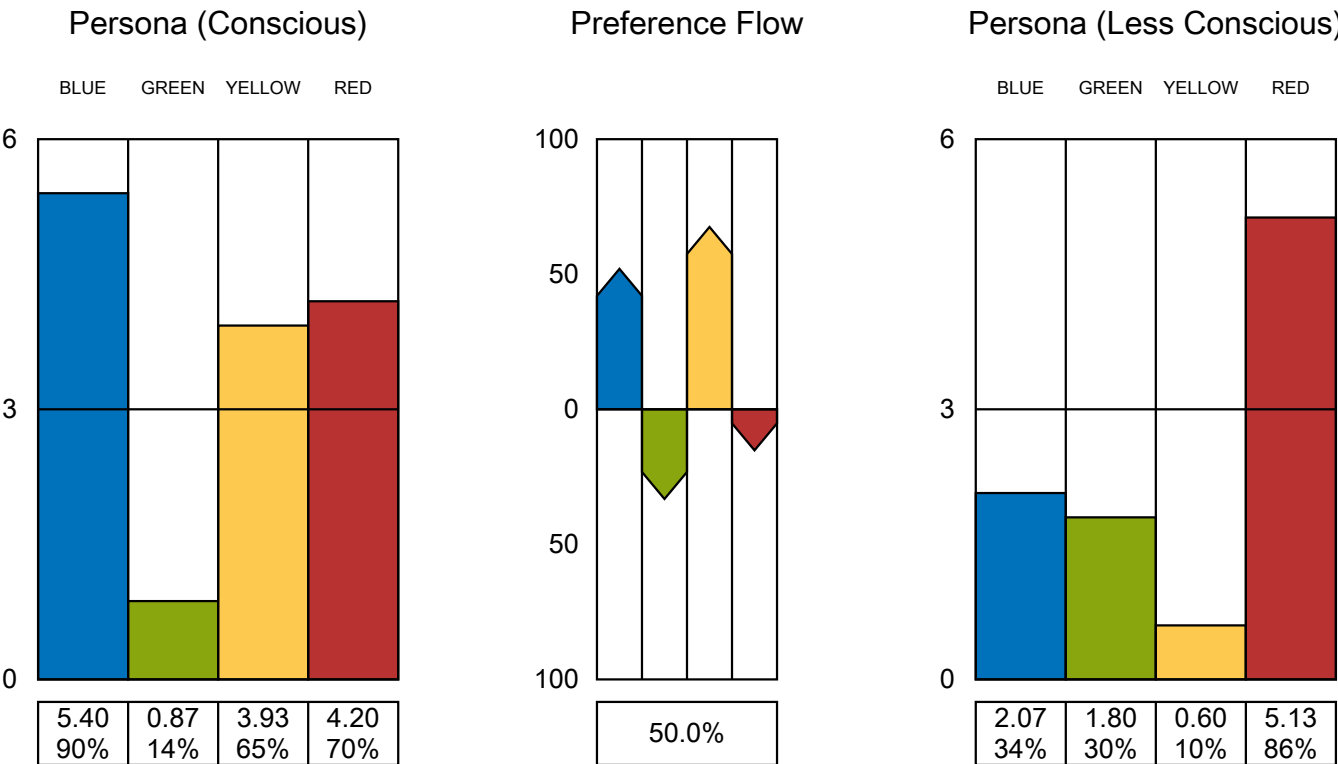

Conscious Wheel Position

56: Observing Reformer (Accommodating)

Less Conscious Wheel Position

1: Directing Reformer (Focused)

The Insights Discovery® Colour Dynamics

GLOBAL HEADQUARTERS

PROFILE: D_PR_RETENTION

Insights Learning & Development

Terra Nova, 3 Explorer Road, Dundee, DD2 1EG, Scotland, UK.

TEL: +44(0)1382 908050 FAX: +44(0)1382 908051

EMAIL: insights@insights.com WEB: www.insights.com